Fair and Warmer Predic- tions for Week-End Are Offered States East of Mississippi Valley.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—A blazing sun seared the midwest again today, bringing more than a score of deaths from heat or drowning in attempts to escape it.

Only slight relief was promised for the week-end as temperatures jumped to the 90's generally throughout the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the Great Lakes region, broken only by a local storm in northwest Wisconsin.

Today's deaths were added to yesterday's toll of five fatal prostrations and two drownings as the warm weather struck for the first time in force.

Mattoon, Ill., reported an unofficial high of 102 degrees, and Waterloo, Iowa, 100. Carbondale, Ill., had 97. It was 95 in St. Louis.

Ninety-five also was registered at Lincoln, Neb., and Cincinnati, 94. In Chicago, Omaha, Indianapolis and St. Paul, and 91 in Cleveland and Joliet.

Five fatalities from drowning and three due to the heat were reported in Minnesota. Chicago blamed three deaths on the heat.

MERCURY HOVERS CLOSE TO 100 IN MANY CITIES

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—
About 72 hours ahead of schedule, summer tested a fevered hand upon virtually the whole eastern area of the country today, sending the mercury close to the 100 mark in several communities.

New York's official temperature was 89 degrees. The beaches were thronged. There were three sudden deaths in the streets, subways and elevated stations but none apparently due to heat.

At Buffalo the official temperature was 72 at 2 p. m. and 68 at 6 a. m.
It rolled up to a temperature of 92 degrees, experiencing a rise of 32 degrees in 12 hours. Albany's hilltop pers felt uncomfortable in 92.9 degrees—just a mere four-tenths of a degree less than a record set in 1923.

New England usually fanned at this time by June's cooling sea breezes, reported temperatures of from 80 at New Haven, Conn., to 92 at Springfield, Mass., and the same at Boston. It was only the fourth time since 1873 that the mark had been touched. In Pawtucket, R. I., a truckman was overcome while at work.

Worcester, Mass., registered 88 at noon.

Minister Confesses 'Attack' Was Hoax

DALLAS, Texas, June 19.—(AP)— R. P. Brown, supply pastor of the North Dallas Baptist church, went before members of his congregation tonight and confessed he had trussed himself from an electric fan in the church early Thursday.

Brown previously had told officers
four masked men had abducted him, stripped him of his clothes and hanged him to a church chandelier, as a result of factional strife in the congregation. He was only slightly injured.

Four Eskimos Travel To Tropics by Canoe

MIAMI, Fla., June 19.—(AP)— Four Eskimos arrived here by canoe today and said they were very glad to be in Florida, where it is cool.
In their home along the arctic circle, they say, it is pretty hot because the sun shines day and night for six months.

Charlie Planinscheck, Frank
O'Grady and two children, Inez, 9, and Tony, 7, are almost at the end of the longest canoe trip in history
—from the fringe of the arctic circle to Havana, Cuba, in the tropics.
Two huskies, or Eskimo dogs are accompanying the quartet.

They left their homes March 21, 1929.

SCREAM IN HOME OF SLAIN BEAUTY

NEW DEATH CLUE

Neighbor Tells of Hear- ing 'Unearthly' Screams on Day Starr Faithfull Was Last Seen.

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press)

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)— Mrs. I. Allard Valentine, who lives in an apartment back of the home of Starr Faithfull's family at 12 St.
Luke's place, said tonight she heard
"blood curdling screams, the most unearthly screams," in the neighborhood
Friday afternoon, June 5.

That is the day Starr Faithfull vanished, starting an inquiry whose startling revelations and suggestions have aroused the news reading public.

Mrs. Valentine's statement to a United Press correspondent came during a period in which the Faithfull family and Inspector King, of the Nassau county force, were mysteriously missing from the Faithfull home and the Minkola headquarters.

They had left headquarters hurriedly after witnesses who expected to testify before the grand jury had been excused, and Inspector King announced he looked for "a break in the case that either would solve the mystery or put investigators right back where they started."

"I know the screams were Friday, sometime between noon and 5 o'clock,
the best of my recollection. I am certain about the day," Mrs. Valentine said, "because I, too, keep a diary."

She volunteered the information that the diary was one her husband could read if he liked.

"It was the most unearthly cry I ever heard," she said.

"Then some woman cried out:
"She must not do that."
"And another added:
"She must not do that."
There was no indication a woman was being choked, or that her voice was in any way muffled, Mrs. Valentine said.

This latest figure in the Faithfull mystery is a woman about 30 years old who has a home in Westchester county, and reported she was suborned Saturday for Provincetown with her child, leaving Mr. Valentine in the Greenwich village home at 32 Morton street.

Earlier this week Stanley Faithfull and members of the family were questioned about reported screams in the neighborhood. They denied they heard any.

They then were questioned about a reported visit to the roof of the apartment house, Faithfull admitted taking a mattress to the roof for airing some time that day. He is a salesman for a rubber mattress manufacturing firm.

While Mrs. Valentine did not say the screams she heard came from the Faithfull home, she said they came from that direction. Her apartment is directly back of the apartment of
No. 12 St. Luke's place.

Inspector King and members of the Faithfull family went to the roof night checking a clue which King hoped would be "a break" in the case.
He wouldn't say what the clue
was.

It was indicated, however, by the questioning he did late in the day, that as evidence pointed more and more toward suicide, two men, however, will be questioned fully before the case is closed, it was said.

One man is Dr. G. Jameson Carr, whom Starr Faithfull, ex-fostered Greenwich Village girl, loved; the other is a mysterious "Bruce" who helped her into a cab when she left the Mauretania pier for the last time as a fugitive, reported he saw Starr and a "millionaire" he knew as "Bruce"
driving about town.

Carr was released in $2,500 bail for appearing next week in the court of common pleas.

Joseph Perry, Jersey City, arrested several weeks ago, pleaded guilty to conspiracy and was released on probation.

Georgia family.

Roosevelt-for-President Club Is Organized in Fulton; Charles B. Shelton Chosen To Direct Campaign Here

Officers of the Fulton county "Franklin D. Roosevelt for President Club" chosen at an organization meeting in the Fulton county courthouse Friday afternoon. Left to right, they are: J. Hope Tigner, vice president; R. J. Reynolds Jr., secretary; Bond Almand, vice president; Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, vice president; Charles B. Shelton, chairman; Dr. George A. Brown, and J. Gordon Hardy, both vice presidents.

One hundred and fifty-four Fulton county democrats Friday afternoon organized Georgia's fourth Roosevelt-for-President Club and pledged their efforts to give the New York governor, whose interest in Warm Springs has long since made him also a resident of this state, an uncontested delegation to the next democratic national convention.

Charles R. Shelton, Fulton county attorney and a classmate of Governor

Roosevelt, was named chairman of the local club and the following other officers were named to constitute the temporary organization and serve also as an executive committee with power to select headquarters for the club and call future meetings:

Vice presidents: Bond Almand, Mrs.
Z. V. Peterson, J. Gordon Hardy, J.
Hope Tigner and Dr. George A.
Brown; secretary, R. Reynolds Jr., and treasurer, W. Baxter Maddox.

By unanimous vote, the club adopted the following resolution offered
by Frank Holden:

"Whereas, Meriwether county, the Georgia home county of Franklin D.
Roosevelt, of New York, has organized a "Franklin D. Roosevelt-for-President Club" and has called upon other counties to take similar action, and
"Whereas, several other counties have already followed the lead of Meriwether, therefore

"Be it resolved, that the Fulton county Franklin D. Roosevelt-for-President Club, this day organized, pledges its support to the movement to give our illustrious foster citizen Georgia's unanimous vote for the democratic presidential nomination in 1932, and
"Resolved, that the chairman of the club be and he is hereby authorized to appoint such committees covering Fulton county as he may deem necessary."

DRY LAW CAUSES CORRUPTION--KEY

Brings Disrespect for Other Statutes, Atlan- ta's Mayor Declares.

BY MARY KNIGHT,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, June 11.—(By Mail.)—
Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, before sailing for home with the party of American mayors, said he was hopeful that his proclamations on prohibition would not evoke any serious quarrels with his citizens, adding that he was happy at the prospect of getting back to Atlanta just as fast as boat and train can carry him.

Before leaving Paris Mayor Key,
who was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ruth Key, made a final pronouncement in which he took a final fling at prohibition. He also declined the invitation of Atlantans to debate the prohibition issue.

"Most of my impressions on the subject are those I brought with me from home," Mayor Key told the United Press just before sailing.

"I learned that in New York and its environs there are 65,000 places where liquor was sold to men and women, boys and girls, night and day.
I have learned at first hand that in many important cities of the United States no effort is being made to suppress the liquor traffic and in one case I learned that the city issued liquor licenses just as before prohibition.

"These facts, with many others which I have gathered, lead to but one conclusion—that our people are being corrupted by the administration of the liquor law. Not only does this apply to the adults but boys and girls are not left unscathed. Such business cannot go on in such a way without the corruption of a people. It breeds not only disrespect for that law but for all law, in addition to the pollution of the traffic itself.

"Furthermore, this business could not go on in this way without the connivance of public authorities, national and local.

Mrs. Harris Sues Coca-Cola For $10,000,000 for Using Characters of 'Uncle Remus'

"Brer Rabbit" and "Tar Baby."
"Brer Terapin" and "Brer Bar." whose delightful escapades in the tales of "Uncle Remus" have thrilled millions of young and old.

Friday were made the basis of a $10,000,000 damage suit for alleged infringement of copyright. Mrs.
Esther LaRose Harris, widow of J.
Chandler Harris, author of "Uncle Remus," filed the suit in federal court against the Coca-Cola Company.

In a statement issued Friday afternoon, the suit was said to be brought by Harold Hirsch, of counsel for the company, it was said that the Coca-Cola Company "would not do anything to infringe the rights of another, and certainly not the rights of the widow of the late Joel Chandler Harris."

Mr. Hirsch said that percentage of the copyright issued by Harris in 1895 with illustrations by John Steptoe Swann, of the book
"Uncle Remus," was sold to the Coca-Cola Company in 1928, and that a new copyright was obtained when a revised edition of "Uncle Remus" was issued in 1928 with illustrations by A. B. Frost. This copyright was renewed by Mrs. Harris on August 12,

1908, for 14 years, and was again renewed for another 14 years on November 23, 1922, the plaintiff alleges.

Hearing on July 18.

An order restraining the Coca-Cola Company from further possession of the alleged infringing material is asked by Mrs. Harris, and the petition has been set by Judge E.
Marvin Underwood, of federal court,
for a hearing on July 18.

Mrs. Harris alleges that the Frost illustrations of 1908, "Brer Rabbit and Tar Baby," "Brer Rabbit Riding
Brer Fox," "Brer Terapin," "Brer Bar Pulling Rope," and the frontispiece showing "Uncle Remus" and
"The Little Boy" have been used by the defendant in window displays and card cut-outs, and that the story on the back of the card cut-outs paraphrases, imitates and includes Frost illustrations and substantial portions of the book. Portions of the book alleged to have been used are "Mr.
Terapin Shows His Strength," "A Plantation Witch" and "The Sad Fate of Mr. Fox."

The company has published and distributed 30,000 copies of the window displays and 5,000,000 copies of the card cut-outs for children, Mrs.
Harris alleges. She charges that the use of the "Uncle Remus" material

NANCE IN FAVOR OF REDISTRICTING

Union Head Believes De- lay Endangers Good of Georgia.

Danger of "selfish interests putting out a flock of candidates and concentrating on a few favorites" was pointed out Friday in a statement of
A. Steve Nance, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, urging the general assembly to expedite consideration of legislation to redistrict the state when it meets next Wednesday.

Nance joined more than a score of legislators, including some of the more prominent members, both United States senators and Governor-elect Russell in the expression of a hope that the legislature would not be deterred from action on reapportionment at the regular session.

"Not only is there danger of selfish interests flooding the state with congressional candidates," Nance said,
"and then selecting a few to throw their strength behind should the 10 members have to be chosen from the state at large but there is a danger of these same interests bringing about a deadlock to prevent the passage of a redistricting bill."

"Failure of the legislature so that each of the 10 seats the state's representation has been reduced to would be filled by a representative of each of 10 sections, would be a violation of the democratic principle of allowing the people to select their own representatives," the labor leader declared.

"Others have pointed out, and I heartily concur, that there is a strong probability, if we do not pass this legislation, of losing many valuable committee assignments to the Georgia delegation and jeopardizing of losing the seniority rights of those who are in line for committee chairmanships.

Moreover, Nance added, "any postponement of the legislature's duty would be to impose a heavy campaign on all the incumbents as well as upon any others who might aspire to a seat in the national house of representatives."

DRY FORCES RALLY SOUTHERN CALLS FOR DRIVE IN 1932 FIVE-DAY PARLEY

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Plans of some 30-odd national dry organizations for keeping prohibition out of the 1932 presidential election as an issue of the first magnitude appeared to have taken definite form today with the revelation that a board of strategy composed of 50 members is being selected to function in the campaign.

Already 35 members of the board have been named. The board, it is explained, is the outgrowth of a conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment and is being appointed by the executive committee of that conference. The program of action of the board is to be outlined at a meeting to be held here on June 26.

More than the usual political significance attached to the revealed plans and purposes of the board is being attached to its very aims and purposes, rather than working to the elimination of the prohibition issue, tend to thrust the troublesome question of the Southern railway system plan to meet within a few days to complete arrangements for Southern shop employees to begin working on a five-day week basis.

The shermen already have voted to accept a five-day week, instead of the six-day week specified in their contract with the railroad.

Railroad officials proposed the plan.
They informed the shermen a reduction in expenses was imperative and that the alternative to the five-day week was a reduction in the number of men working.

H. J. Carr, vice president of the International Association of Machinists, in announcing acceptance of the proposal, today said there would be no
cut in the hourly wage scale.

Approximately 8,000 workers for the Southern will be affected. They include boiler makers, machinists, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers and carmen.

Carr said he looked for no hitch in

Paper Claims Torrio Has Succeeded Capone

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Today's Herald and Examiner said Johnny "The Immune" Torrio has succeeded Alphonse Capone.

The proclamation that Torrio had invested himself with the dual roles of gangland leadership, the newspaper said, was posted last night in the haunts of the half-world.

Rumors have been persistent for weeks that the protégé of "Big Jim" Colosimo had abandoned his western ranch to intervene once more in underworld activities.

Bullets from George "Bugs" Moran guns hastened Torrio's decision several years ago to quit Chicago's gang warfare. Twice before attempts on his life were unsuccessful. Thus he gained the sobriquet of "The Immune."

PRESIDENT CALLS PARTIES' LEADERS TO WHITE HOUSE

White House Statement Says No Conclusions Have Been Reached But Expresses Gratification at Progress Made.

He called congressional leaders into conference about it today. More conferences will follow.

A White House statement said no
conclusions had been reached but expressed gratification at the progress made. It disclosed the conversations were especially directed "to strengthening the situation in Germany."

GLASS AND WALSH JOIN DISCUSSION

Both Parties Co-operat- ing Heartily in Confer- ences at White House, President Says.

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.
WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—
President Hoover is seeking a means of averting an economic crisis in Europe.

He called congressional leaders into
conference about it today. More conferences will follow.

A White House statement said no
conclusions had been reached but expressed gratification at the progress
made. It disclosed the conversations
were especially directed "to strengthening the situation in Germany."

The republicans and democrats hurriedly summoned to the White House upon Mr. Hoover's return from the central west were extremely reticent about the conversations.

There was no intimation of whether a moratorium on the war debts or an international conference on debts and reparations was in the making.

Secretary Mellon is in London and yesterday he conferred with Ramsey MacDonald and other leaders of the government there.

Here is what Mr. Hoover said about the situation:

"Since my return from the central west yesterday I have conferred with those leaders of both political parties who are present in Washington with respect to certain steps which we might take to assist in economic recovery both here and abroad.

"These conversations have been particularly directed to strengthening the situation in Germany. No definite plans or conclusions have yet been arrived at but the response which I have met with is most gratifying.

"Any statement of any plan or method is wholly speculative and is not warranted by the facts.

Under Secretary Mills of the treasury joined the president in some of the discussions today.

Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, also joined the president at breakfast this morning with Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, one of the ranking regulars on the finance committee, and Representative Tilton, of Connecticut, the republican leader of the house.

Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, and Walsh, democrat, Montana, were then summoned. Glass was secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson and played a long role in the war debt negotiations.
Senator Walsh is a member of the foreign relations committee.

Others with whom the president talked during the way were Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, a republican member of the house ways

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Wide variance in the ages of those registered for the June term of the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression at 402 Wesley Memorial church may be noted from a list of those attending the classes. The students range from small children studying expression to businessmen seeking a convincing "selling voice."

Dr. George B. McNeely, Irish preacher and Bible teacher of Newark, N. J., will speak at 3 p. m. and 7 p. m. Sunday in the Dixie Gospel tent at Lee and Beecher streets, it was announced Friday.

The Rev. Robert H. Lamkin, principal of the Chattahoochee school, will have charge of services at the South Decatur Baptist church Sunday, it was announced Friday.

Poster 'Ads' Cause Damage Suit

"Brer Rabbit" and the "Tar Baby," two of the characters in the Uncle Remus stories, written by Joel Chandler Harris. The above drawing, used as an advertisement by the Coca-Cola Company, is one of four which the widow of the author alleges is an infringement on her copyright when used as advertising, and for which she asks $10,000,000 in damages in a suit filed Friday in federal court.

MRS. HARRIS SUES FOR 10 MILLION

is "unfair exploitation as an advertising medium for financial benefit of the defendant."

Mrs. Harris has filed with her petition a number of exhibits, including a copy of the original copyright and the alleged renewals, in addition to an exhibit of the advertising material involved in the suit.

The entire history of the Coca-Cola Company follows: "Counsel for the Coca-Cola Company has just been furnished with a copy of the suit of Mrs. Esther LaRose Harris filed in the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia, and has not had sufficient time to fully review it."

"The company does not, of course, care to try the issues involved in the case in the newspapers or by public statements, but a statement has been requested by the newspapers and the company with that request is the reason for this statement."

"The Coca-Cola Company shows a stand in favor of business integrity, and this is particularly true in regard to the fight against the use of trademarks, through many years, and it is certain that this company would not do anything to infringe the rights of another, and certainly not the rights of the widow of the late Joel Chandler Harris."

"Prior to issuing the advertising campaign of the company was very careful to obtain full permission of D. Appleton & Co., the publishers, and to fully comply with their request to give full benefit to the copyright owners by placing on the advertising a statement suggested and approved by D. Appleton & Co."

"The basis of the complaint is the use of three figures drawn by B. F. Froet and were paid for and owned by D. Appleton & Co. and first appeared in a book published in 1905 on which there was a copyright which, however, belonged to D. Appleton & Co."

"Besides obtaining permission of D. Appleton & Co. it was ascertained that the copyright of 1905 was not renewed. In addition thereto it was ascertained that practically all of the stories of the late Joel Chandler Harris appeared in The Atlanta Constitution and other newspapers prior to the publication in 1980 and neither Joel Chandler Harris nor The Atlanta Constitution obtained a copyright thereon."

"Thus, besides obtaining the permission above referred to, the company ascertained that what it used was in the public domain."

"The Coca-Cola company feels that its moral right is perfectly secure in having obtained the permission of the publishers, and that its legal right is such that it has infringed nothing belonging to Mrs. Harris."

Mrs. Harris is represented by Smith, Hammond, Smith & Bloodworth and King & Partridge.

Watkins Edwards, of Ellijay, and Senator W. H. Duckworth, of the seventh district.

Duckworth said that redistricting is one of the assembly's most important problems.

"It is not a difficult one," he added, "if members will apply simple honesty and common sense. With a map of the state and the last census it ought to be settled within a day or so. If there is any long time consumed it will be due to cheap politics and log rolling."

Representative Harvey Kennedy, of Lamar, one of Governor-elect Russell's unofficial cabinet, said:

"Reapportionment is a vital question and I would like very much to see the general assembly dispose of it, and in doing so, to believe that it should not be taken up until the last 15 days of the regular session."

INCREASE REPORTED FOR JOBS IN APRIL, MAY

Further Expansion in Road Construction Is Also Shown.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—Increased employment in outdoor work for May with April averages maintained in other lines, was reported today by the labor department.

Building, farm work, highway construction and other forms of outdoor work were named as having absorbed large numbers of men.

An analysis of the reports received by the United States employment service during the month of May, the department said, reveals increasing employment in all outdoor activities.

"There was a further expansion in road construction in practically every section of the country, which included county, state and federal projects.

"Numbers of skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled construction laborers, who were unemployed during most of the winter months, have been absorbed and are practically assured of steady employment until the late fall.

"Heavy construction work, such as hydro-electric development, projects, dams, tunnels and a large mileage of natural gas pipeline installations, provided employment for many additional men, including highly trained artisans.

"Spring agricultural work was at its peak, requiring the services of thousands of farm workers.

"Building showed some improvement but maintained on a basis below normal for this period of the year and considerable idleness was apparent in some localities among the building trades men.

"While industrial operations and indoor factory employment remained on a subnormal basis in several of the major industries, there was no real decline from the average maintained in April, except that which was due almost entirely to seasonal influences.

Better schedules prevailed in the boot and shoe industry, especially in the New England district, where quite a number of these factories worked with increased forces and several of these plants located in the west north central district reported some increase in forces engaged.

An encouraging feature of the industrial activity of the month was the upward trend in both production and employment in certain branches of the textile industry. However, many workers were still employed on curtailed schedules in certain localities and large surpluses of textile mill labor prevailed in some sections.

"The shipbuilding industry kept large forces of men engaged and additional skilled shipfitters were employed in a number of yards along the Atlantic coast.

"Plants manufacturing airplanes and airplane motors worked on fairly satisfactory schedules.

"Some increase in operations occurred in the automobile industry, but a number of these workers were still employed on part-time schedules.

"The trend of activity in the iron and steel industry was unsteady, as in some of these mills there was a slight decrease in operations and forces and considerable unemployment was apparent among these workers.

"Curtailed schedules and forces obtained in several of the radio-manufacturing establishments. There was a further seasonal increase in coal mining, affecting large numbers of miners.

BIBLE MIRACLE EVIDENCE FOUND

Material evidence of two of the most spectacular miracles of the Bible has been gathered by British archeologists, according to messages from Palestine.

Professor John Garstang, leader of the Jericho expedition financed by Sir Charles Marston, has reported that the collapse of the walls of Jericho before the Jewish hosts under Joshua was apparently due to an earthquake. He based his theory upon the discovery that the walls of the city had fallen outward in places in a manner which suggested seismic disturbances.

The same natural phenomenon accounts for the drying up of the Jordan for the Jews to cross, he believes. The expedition, he says, has gathered evidence that the clay banks of the river caved in near El Danaiya about the period described in the Bible.

Sir Charles Marston, who has financed three expeditions to the site of the biblical city, believes this naturalistic explanation of the miracles really corroborates the biblical description.

Reno Police Chief Waxes Insulting As Vanderbilt Sues for Divorce

RENO, Nev., June 19.—(UP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., curly-haired social celebrity who got a big laugh from the nation when he said he chased Carnation Peter Arno with an empty pistol, sued his wife for divorce today.

He charged her with "extreme cruelty" and revealed that the suit grew out of his quarrel with Arno, the caricaturist, who gained fame drawing pictures of gentlemen in embarrassing situations and in top hats.

Vanderbilt insisted that he chased Arno with an empty pistol last Sunday night because the latter had been too attentive to Mrs. Vanderbilt. Young Vanderbilt intimated that it was a good thing the pistol wasn't loaded.

Arno announced that if Vanderbilt had chased him with a pistol, loaded, unloaded, pop or otherwise, he didn't know anything about it. He added further that if he paid any attention to Mrs. Vanderbilt, those intentions were honorable.

Whereupon Arno applied to Chief of Police Kirkley for a bodyguard.

"How," said the chief, "it's the funniest thing I ever heard of. All this talk of gunplay makes me laugh. If someone set off a firecracker behind those two they'd both drop dead."

Arno had no reply to that and so will have to go without a bodyguard, unless he hires one privately. Vanderbilt already has a guard and also a pocket blackjack, which he demonstrated to newspapermen.

Attorney Sam Platt, for Vanderbilt, and Attorney Clyde Sore, for Arno, girded themselves for legal battle. Attorney William Woodburn, for Mrs. Vanderbilt, also intends to enter the fray.

"Mrs. Vanderbilt's divorce action comes as a complete surprise," said Woodburn. "We probably will contest the case."

Said Southern: "Mr. Arno has consulted me as to the advisability of libel action against Sam Platt to clear his name and remove the stigma from Mrs. Vanderbilt's name which Platt broadcast throughout the country."

Platt said nothing, but announced he had a brief with Sore, who is representing Arno, from statements made by Platt broadcast throughout the country."

The Vanderbilts deserted their home, Mrs. Vanderbilt tried to live with Mr. and Mrs. True Vincill, close friends, half a mile away, while her husband moved to the Riverside hotel. Arno also moved from his home.

General Gomez was elected to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Juan Pablo Perez, who resigned last week at the demand of congress.

Dr. Perez submitted his resignation last Saturday. He was elected to the presidency in May, 1929, for a term of seven years, succeeding General Gomez, who went into retirement.

Dr. Perez stepped down after congress had made a formal request for his resignation, declaring that the supreme interests of the nation required that he withdraw from office.

Previously a letter had been sent to General Gomez by members of congress stating that the internal condition of the country was very unfavorable, urging a change in administration and requesting him to resume the presidency.

CATHOLICS PROTEST NEW MEXICAN LAW

MEXICO CITY, June 19.—(AP)—Officials of the Catholic church, gathered in Mexico City to contest the new Vera Cruz law which limits the number of priests and bishops in the entire state to 11, resolved today to proceed cautiously.

Archbishop Ruiz Flores, papal nuncio to Mexico, has protested vigorously to President Ortiz Rubio and has asked that the president intervene. The president is ill at his home and it was expected today that he would not reply for several days.

Although the church officials who have gathered here agreed on a policy of caution, they did not tamper with instructions they received in Vera Cruz that they ignore the new law. It was expected that these instructions would result in the virtual vacating of the churches by the priests.

TWO CAUGHT ON ROOF; THREE MAKE ESCAPE

Officers C. P. Wright and G. C. Hughes, riding in a radio car early Friday morning, saw three negroes jump from the roof of the Atlanta Economy Drug Company at 190 Jackson street. They investigated and found two other negroes on the roof who stated that they were sleeping there to escape the heat. However, presence of burglar tools caused the officers to lock them up on charges of suspicious conduct.

The three men were named as Theodore Little and Columbus Williams.

DOLE LEAVES DETROIT WITH HEAVY DEFICIT

DETROIT, June 18.—(AP)—This city's traditional policy of unemployment relief as a municipal government function and at the public expense has cost the taxpayers of Detroit approximately $20,000,000 in the last two fiscal years.

Since January there has been a gradual decline, April the last month reported, showed expenditures of $1,344,000.

The present situation began to develop in the late summer of 1930. Then the city's welfare expenditures began mounting. Up and up they went—$600,000 in September, $1,000,000 in October, $1,200,000 in November—until the crest was reached in January, 1931, when $2,000,000 was spent.

HAITI SEEKS REMOVAL OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS

Legislative Body Declares U. S. Occupation Is "Dangerous and Illegal"

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, June 19.—(UP)—The legislative chamber today demanded that President Steno Vincent act to end the "dangerous and illegal" occupation of Haiti by the United States.

The chamber's report, adopted by unanimous vote, declared the treaty with the United States permitting occupation has been non-existent since May, 1926.

The presence of the American military force in Haiti is unnecessary, vexing and dangerous in view of the fact that a stable government now has been established by election, the report to the president said. The president was asked to take immediate steps through regular channels to end the occupation.

"The convention signed September 18, 1916, expired May 3, 1926," the report said. "The additional act of May 28, 1917, (providing for extension of the occupation) is null and should be considered non-existent."

"The Haitian executive should act diligently in the name of the republic to achieve suspension as soon as possible of the effects of the convention and the American military occupation."

18 FACE RIOT CHARGES AFTER MINE PICKETING

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, June 19.—(AP)—Eighteen men and women arrested in disorders accompanying the picketing of coal mines in Belmont county were under charges of inciting to riot tonight.

A double set of pickets, representing competing unions, were on duty at the President mine in Belmont county. Sheriff William Yost, of Steubenville, filed the charges against the 18 after a disorder at the Piney Fork mine of the M. A. Hanna Company. A corps of deputy sheriffs dispersed the pickets after they refused to obey an order to leave the workings.

The United Mine Workers of America established picket lines outside those of the National Miners' Union at President mine of the Clarkson Coal Company. Company officials have refused to recognize either union.

Zeppelin Shows Ability to Land On Water Surface

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 19.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin settled down on Lake Constance today demonstrating for the first time that she can be landed successfully on the water without the assistance of the landing crew which always brings her down to earth.

It was accomplished by releasing gas until the big ship floated down smoothly on the rubber-covered bumpers of her gondolas.

Although it was the first time this ship has landed in the lake, the earlier Zeppelins used it regularly and were housed in hangars along the lake shore. Their gondolas were of different construction, but the only alteration made in the craft was to spread waterproof shields over her bumpers.

A specially devised mushroom anchor which looks like a huge umbrella held the craft still in the water for several minutes while two rubber lifeboats were lowered.

Then Captain Lehmann raised his anchor, taxied the dirigible along the lake for about a mile, released his water ballast and the Zeppelin took to the air again.

Depression Brings More Card Playing

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—Card playing is on the increase during these days of unemployment.

At least that is one explanation why the treasury is getting more revenue from "the pasteboards."

During the 11 months of the fiscal year the stamp that cost 9 cents each brought the government $4,553,700, or $59,693 more than during the corresponding period of the year before. In the month of May 761,400 more packs were manufactured than in May, 1930, for a total of $3,062,500.

Gangland Civil War Impends As New York Jails Leader

DUTCH SCHULTZ AND DETECTIVE DEROSA.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—A grand jury indicted Dutch Schultz, Bronx hoodlum chief, today. At the same time police learned civil war was imminent among New York's "public enemies," who are at present under the same sort of official scrutiny that put a check to the activities of Al Capone in Chicago.

Underworld reports told of the return to town of Vincent Coll, a former Schultz underling. Those reports said Coll was rolling an ambitious eye at the momentarily empty throne of his old leader. Coll, it was said, left town a few weeks ago to recuperate from wounds inflicted in a gun battle with followers of Joe and Pete Rago, who would consider an unofficial influence in the Bronx.

Should Coll actually attempt to assume the mantle of Dutch Schultz while the latter is held helpless in the arms of the law, officials consider it possible that the public enemies might well divide into conflicting ranks and wage war upon each other as well as the public.

Schultz, whose real name is Fliegenbeiner, was arrested yesterday outside his $2,500 a year Fifth Avenue apartment, where he lives under the name of Russell Jones. Two detectives were following him and Dan Iamaccia, one of Dutch's muscle men. Suddenly Iamaccia drew a pistol and opened fire. The detectives fired back and fatally wounded Iamaccia. They found a pistol and $18,645 in cash on Schultz.

The grand jury indicted the racketeer today for possessing a revolver and for first and second degree assault on the detectives. His record shows nine previous arrests, on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to homicide. He "beat the rap" in every instance but one, when he was convicted of housebreaking.

Arraigned in general sessions on the three charges on which he was indicted, Schultz, through his counsel, pleaded not guilty and was held in $45,000 bail.

California Growers Alarmed By Exodus of Mexican Laborers

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(AP)—Characterized by some as the greatest exodus since the Huguenot heira in the 16th century, between 60,000 and 75,000 Mexicans have repatriated from southern California since January 1.

Into the picture of the great migration crept pitiful scenes as Mexican laborers, usually with large families, sought to return to their native Mexican states and were stranded on desert wastes or arid mountainous regions.

Three principal reasons are advanced by immigration authorities, chamber of commerce officials, and Rafael De La Colina, Mexican consul here, as the causes for the general migration. Primarily, Colina said, the unemployment situation coupled with the loss of their home country, is responsible for the exodus.

Immigration authorities, despite repeated denials of a campaign to deport alien Mexicans, asserted the few raids on the Los Angeles Mexican center and arrests of aliens had caused an unfounded widespread fear among the foreign populace.

"Americans are so far removed from the class of work Mexicans do in the fields," C. P. Moore, secretary of the United Mexican American Society, said, "that a labor shortage during late summer harvest time is sure to result."

Bernt Balchen's Citizenship Hope Blasted by Decision of Bureau

BY REX COLLIER.

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Bernt Balchen's hopes of becoming an American citizen this year have been blasted by the department of labor. With southern reluctance, Uncle Sam has decided to refuse Balchen his naturalization papers at this time because the blond Viking of the air spent nearly two years in the Antarctic with Admiral Byrd's south polar expedition.

But for his heroic service in Little America, Balchen would have received his final citizenship papers within the next few months, as he then would have completed five years of continuous residence required under the naturalization laws.

Balchen's contention that his adventures months in Antarctica were spent under the United States flag claimed for this country by Admiral Byrd, is actually a part of the United States, has failed to move the bureau of naturalization from its adverse stand.

Raymond F. Crist, United States commissioner of naturalization, said that if Balchen should appeal to the courts from the bureau's ruling, the government will have to enter its objection to the granting of citizenship until Balchen has completed a full term of uninterrupted residence in the territorial limits of the United States.

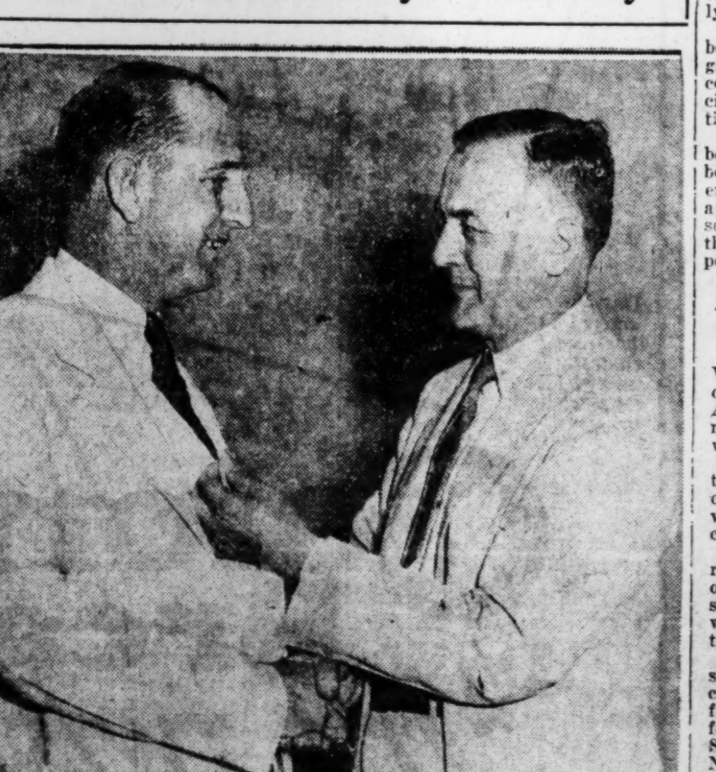

Admiral Byrd has supported Balchen in the citizenship fight. The matter came to the attention of congress last year when legislation was proposed to bestow citizenship on Balchen and any other members of the Byrd expedition who otherwise were eligible. The legislation failed of passage, however.

It is now certain that the Balchen case again will be brought before congress at the next session.

GARNER HITS MELLON ON BOND ISSUE

Democratic Leader Says Interest Rate Is Too High

LAREDO, Texas, June 19.—(AP)—Representative John Garner, of Texas, democratic leader of the house, says he believes Secretary of the Treasury Mellon had made a mistake in offering $800,000,000 in treasury certificates at 3 1/8 per cent interest and that he advised the secretary the issue undoubtedly would be over-subscribed at 3 per cent.

Garner, here yesterday, expressed dissatisfaction at the uneven distribution of wealth over the country.

"For more than 100 years we have been feeding New England and concentrating money there," he asserted.

"The time has come for this money to be more evenly distributed and Texas should get its share. The state of Rhode Island, no larger than Webb county, Texas, paid more inheritance taxes last year than the entire state of Texas."

TWO KILLED, FIVE HURT IN BRIDGE ACCIDENT

CARTHAGE, Tenn., June 19.—(AP)—Two bridge workers were killed and five others injured near here this morning when false work on a span under construction over the Caney Fork river collapsed. Five others leaped to safety as the mass of concrete, timbers and steel beams crumpled under them.

The dead: Bill Dagerstein and Hubert Vaden.

The injured: O. C. Staples, foreman, Ovid Matheny, John Overstreet, V. W. Griffin and Tom Staples.

A number of the injured men were working on a concrete bridge which a huge concrete slab was being carried. Witnesses said that without warning there was a splintering of wood and the muddy concrete, broken lumber and steel fell around the men below.

The bridge was under construction to replace an old toll bridge over the river three miles from here. The Whiting Turner Construction Company, of Baltimore, is contractor.

Pershing Criticism Of British Army Arouses London

LONDON, June 19.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing's criticisms of the British army in the Western Front, as revealed in his recent book, just published here, is the subject of resentment in the press today.

The London press described his statements that the allied troops were at a low point of morale in 1918 as "not only ungenerous but demonstrably unfair."

The Daily Mail declared the British had always been reluctant to criticize American troops and their leaders and asked if it "isn't unreasonable" to return the compliment to such a distinguished American general for something more than an indictment of our supposed mistakes and failures?

"Pershing, like many of his countrymen, has mistaken the psychological for the physiological. Those tired, down-the-hill, old crooks known as the British army smashed the Cambria line and that was the end of the war."

COMMUNIST PLAN SUCCESS IN IOWA

AMANA, Iowa, June 19.—(UP)—A communistic colony similar in many ways to the government of soviet Russia has prospered here in the town of Amana, Iowa.

The colony is made up of seven units harboring upward of 1,200 persons and has existed with communism since the standard of living since the colony first was established by German immigrants.

Every person in the colony is entitled to a living from the colony, and the colony is self-sufficient. To make subsistence possible the industrialists farm more than 2,500 acres of land, raise livestock and manufacture tires and woolen products.

Contrary to the Russian desire for the latest in scientific achievements, the communists here are content to adopt modern inventions. It was only recently that ox teams were replaced by tractors and until a short time ago bobbed hair was under a strict taboo.

Also in contrast to the soviet system, the Amana communists are highly religious.

Over each of the seven units a board of trustees presides and an organization of the elder men in the community, known as the great council, settles matters concerning the entire group.

Included in such problems would be the question of allowing a young boy or girl to attend college. If properly fitted the applicant would be approved by the great council and sent to a finishing school to study the subject of his choice at the expense of the community.

Non-Sailing Sailors Deter Old Ironsides

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—When the frigate Old Ironsides sets out from Boston for Washington, Assistant Secretary Jahncke, of the navy believes, ignominious or not, it will be in tow of a tug.

This despite a number of suggestions that the ancient warrior proceed under its own sailing power with its sailormen rearing as closely as possible those of 1812.

Although the ship is completely rigged with 30 sails having an area of 22,500 square feet, Jahncke said the navy has no crew that would know how to furl and unfurl them.

At first was under the impression that the ship had no sailing canvas, since the navy was without funds to purchase sails, but was informed today that the Wellington, Sears Manufacturing Company, of New York, had donated the full set as a "patriotic gesture."

"To reach a crew to handle those sails you would have to take them out and train them for two or three months," the secretary said. "It would be impossible to comply with the schedule of visits to various cities that has been mapped out for the old vessel. Everything would depend on the winds."

SECRETARY REFUSES TO REVEAL NATURE OF DATA GIVEN TO PRESIDENT

Fletcher Refuses To Reveal Nature of Many Recommendations

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The tariff commission today sent a large number of recommendations to President Hoover.

What items were included in the mass of documents placed on the president's desk was not made known.

Chairman Fletcher, of the tariff commission, called on President Hoover for a brief conference but would not discuss the commission's recommendations.

The reorganized commission has completed nearly 100 examinations of schedules since passage of the 1930 tariff act.

DRY LAW CAUSES CORRUPTION—KEY

tional, state and city. Where thousands of illegal places exist and where no effort is made to repress them, it proves conclusively that our official law is being corrupted by this traffic.

The prohibition law has been a great disappointment in that respect. I am one of those who are disappointed. I am not intending to put forth propaganda but state facts as they are. I do not assume to be wise enough to offer a solution for this problem. I am sure that a solution is possible. I hope to see a sincere effort made there should be an elimination of those who would exploit this question for their own political or material benefit.

This applies to wet as well as to dry. This is a question that will have to be solved by the sober, level-headed, courageous, common-sense of the people. The law should be resolved not in the light of this or that formula, but for the purpose of doing the best service to the whole of our people and to the establishment of a wholesome law-abiding and law-enforcing citizenship.

"I see I have been invited to a joint debate with my questioner, J. E. Upshaw. I have no time, strength or disposition to multiply words with him. He is welcome to visit our city and discuss this question. He may listen at any time. Our hospitality and our patience knows practically no limit. We will put up with anything and should be ready at least for awhile. He can bear testimony to that."

MINISTERS CONDEMN STAND

Resolutions opposing Key's attitude on the prohibition question and condemning him were passed by the Methodist Protestant ministers of the Georgia annual conference, it was announced by O. B. Tally, secretary.

A clause in the constitution of the Georgia annual conference reads: "Our faith now in him has been so weakened that it will be impossible to support him further."

The North Georgia Young People's assembly at Oxford passed resolutions assailing "condemnation of our constitution to foreigners in a foreign land" and also voted to assist in outlawing war.

J. B. Gresham, pastor of the Mount Vernon Methodist church, also criticized Key, saying "the association and the denomination are not likely to be found among the prohibitionists."

Key from the Ile de France said he had tried to be candid and fair about the prohibition question and would not comment on the local political situation before reaching Atlanta.

Dr. Witherspoon Dodge, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, also praised the mayor for his courageous stand, saying "It is his honest conviction that the experiment of prohibition is not the best way to handle the liquor evil" and offering to host a Sunday school class in his church, should the Grace Methodist church, where Key teaches a Bible class, not want his services further.

SOUTHERN CALLS FIVE-DAY PARLEY

the negotiations with railroad officials. He emphasized, however, that the arrangement was temporary, and the continuation depended upon business revival, accompanied by an increase in railroad revenues. He said it had no connection with proposals for a five-day week with the same pay as for six days.

A number of railroads, he said, had in effect put the five-day week in operation already. He explained that provisions in their contract made it unnecessary for a vote to be taken as was the case with the Southern shops.

Carr said he had heard that other railroads might adopt a five-day week in preference to laying off more men, but that no votes on such proposals were being taken by workers at present.

RATE INCREASE DECLARED ONLY PRACTICAL SOLUTION

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 19.—(AP)—Milton W. Harrison, president of the National Security Owners' Association, today declared that the only practical solution for the proposed restoration of freight rates was the only practical means of improving the position of the carriers and helping to relieve railroad unemployment.

He called upon railroad labor to join with the owners of rail securities and with railroad managements in revitalizing the industry. In an address before the forty-third convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Carriers, he asserted that a united effort on the part of railway labor, management and capital would help bring the carriers out of their present difficulties, react favorably to all industry and hasten the return of national prosperity.

FLORIDA RAIL COMMISSION OPPOSES INCREASE IN RATES

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 19.—(AP)—The Florida railroad commission today requested the interstate commerce commission to deny a proposed application of rail carriers for a 15 per cent increase in all interstate freight rates.

The commission's communication said, in part:

"Because of the fact that Florida is a large producer of long haul high-grade perishable traffic, this state would probably be his hardest by the proposed increase than any other state. Our people, during this period of depression, have been stripped of their homes and their property."

"We greatly fear that such an increase as proposed will have the effect of stimulating the movement of traffic by other methods of transportation and thereby defeat the ends intended."

Tag Day for Ward.

The Battle Hill sanitarian citizens' committee will hold tag day today for the benefit of raising funds for the proposed children's ward for negroes. The city will be thoroughly canvassed by a group from the colored Junior Welfare League.

Uncle Sam Says Aimee Owes $21,339 in Back Income Tax

AIMEE McPHERSON.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The government is attempting to collect $21,339 from Mrs. Aimee McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, on income which it claims she failed to report from 1926, 1927 and 1928.

Mrs. McPherson has challenged the government's findings and a hearing has been set for next Wednesday before the board of tax appeals.

The evangelist contended she had reported all of her income which was taxable. A large portion of the money not reported was contributed by Angelus Temple, of which Mrs. McPherson is pastor, for use in her defense following her mysterious disappearance in 1926.

For 1926 Mrs. McPherson reported $8,110 income which the government estimated at $42,368. She reported $9,712 in 1927 to which the government added $18,625 which the government increased to $107,395. She was assessed $544 on the amount she reported.

The records showed $31,658 was expected in 1926 and $9,523 in 1927 in defending her against possible criminal prosecution. When it was reported an indictment would be sought, she said an appeal was made in her behalf to Angelus Temple for funds. She contended they were outright gifts and not taxable.

Most of the remainder assessed by the government represented real estate transactions. In addition, the government listed $12,000 in cashier's checks which it claimed she received in 1928 from an account in the name of "Elizabeth Johnson" in the 39th and Western avenue branch of the Security First National bank of Los Angeles.

The government contended she invested this money in real estate and made no report.

PRESIDENT CALLS PARTIES' LEADERS TO WHITE HOUSE

and means committee, which passes on debt legislation; and Senators Bingham, republican, Connecticut, and King, democrat, Utah.

Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee is en route to the capital from his home in Utah and there was a report that Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, might be an early visitor here.

Congressional approval would be required for any revision in the debts, but there was no intimation by any of the White House callers that the president had any intention of calling a special session.

There was speculation on the possible participation by this government in the discussion of the entire war debt problem, including German reparations.

In this connection Prime Minister MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, who the British foreign secretary, are going to Berlin on July 17 to return the recent visit of Chancellor Brüning and Foreign Minister Curtius, of the German government.

Secretary Stimson also is going abroad this week.

There was a memorandum on the war debts was discussed somewhat in official circles. It was pointed out that the European powers paid their installment on their war debts and that further payments are not due until December.

TWO ISSUES DIVORCED

The government has always taken the position that its relation between the reparations demanded of Germany by her European war enemies and the debts owed to this government by the same countries.

However, provision was made in the debt settlements between the United States and her debtors for declaration of a moratorium on the war debts.

There is a similar provision in the Young plan of reparations payments.

Whatever is undertaken it will mark the divorce of the relation between the reparations demanded of Germany by her European war enemies and the debts owed to this government by the same countries.

MELLON'S LONDON VISIT ASSUMES IMPORTANCE

LONDON, June 19.—(AP)—The visit of Andrew W. Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, to Great Britain was assuming an importance tonight comparable to that of the recent Anglo-German conversations at Chequers, the fourth home of Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson to Berlin.

At the same time additional significance has been given to Mr. Mellon's presence here by Washington dispatches which stated that President Mellon is in a critical position in the European financial situation, and that it was believed some administrative action relating to this was imminent.

Whether Mr. Mellon's visit in London is official or is purely private, as he insists, the American secretary of the treasury is understood to have listened at length since his arrival to facts and figures regarding the serious economic situation in Europe.

Mr. Mellon's informants have been Prime Minister MacDonald, with whom he has conferred twice; Foreign Secretary Henderson and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England.

In addition to these, it is understood he has talked also with a representative of the Bank of France, who called on him at his hotel.

The importance of the United States in world affairs is taken for granted here, and it is felt that no solution of Europe's problems without the United States at least knowing exactly what it is all about. For that reason, Mr. Mellon's visit and the forthcoming trip of Secretary Stimson are regarded as particularly significant.

LOAN PARSIMONY LAID TO FEDERAL RESERVE

LaGuardia Says Bank Denying Loans to Legitimate Enterprise

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—A more encouraging attitude by the federal reserve system toward business was recommended to Governor Eugene Meyer today by Representative LaGuardia.

Saying he had heard complaints about "the inability of manufacturers and businessmen to obtain bank loans to finance their usual operations and even to manufacture goods that have already been ordered," the New York republican asserted "something is wrong with a banking system that will stifle industry to such an extent."

LaGuardia enclosed a letter from Charles A. Carlson, president of the Remington-Keystone Manufacturing Company, Ridley Park, Pa., to Ingalls M. Uppercue, of New York city, in which Carlson said banks had declined a $30,000 first mortgage on property appraised at about $130,000 and added:

"It would be interesting to find out why no federal reserve help comes out to the small manufacturer through their local banks and how much of the bank's frozen assets consists of loans to manufacturers and compare this percentage with loans to clients that buy stock on margin."

U. S. REBUKES EARHART FOR CARELESS FLYING

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The commerce department announced today that Amelia Earhart had been reprimanded for carelessness and poor judgment in handling her autogiro when it crashed at Abilene, Texas, last week.

Reports reaching the department recently have been that the inspector on the field at the time had recommended that she be grounded for 90 days.

It was announced that a letter was going forward to Miss Earhart today officially reprimanding her.

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—

Bonds were back and forth today in a close without a definite trend. With a few exceptions net changes were fractional. The aggregate turnover of $10,170,000 in par value showed a good increase, however, over yesterday.

The irregularity of the price movement was most apparent among foreign obligations. Brazilian and Argentine issues were generally firm to higher. Chilean obligations recorded net declines as high as 1/8 point, which occurred in the federal government 7s of 1942. German loans suffered a general decline also. United States government loans showed an easy tone on limited selling.

Unusual activity developed in sporadic domestic corporate bonds. Armour 5-3/8s of 1943 jumped 5 points to a new record. Newspaper Alliance, Ohio convertible 4-1/2s of 1960 showed fractional gains and St. Paul adjustment 5s of 2000 closed 1-1/2 points higher.

Trading in most other issues was confined to a few small transactions, the trend among them was similar to irregular and net changes were narrow.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM.

Editor, The News Service of Wall Street.

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, June 19.—The general stock market today continued to drift to lower levels, but the selling pressure, with the result that net losses for the day were smaller than in the preceding session.

Railroad issues continued to show the largest changes, the net losses ranging from 1 to nearly 4 points, the maximum decline being registered in Atchafalaya. Reports from Washington declare that the interstate commerce commission will render a decision in the freight rate case in about three weeks.

However, a number of traders do not believe a decision will be rendered in so short a time, and this is causing some profit-taking in the railroad stocks. Owners of railroad stocks were somewhat encouraged by the announcement that the representatives of the eastern trunk lines had held another conference and reported further progress.

FOREIGN SITUATION.—Trading was slightly in excess of the preceding session but continues very light. Most speculators have adopted a waiting attitude, while waiting for the general of developments in the foreign war debt situation, the expectation being that there will be a moratorium declared on all war debts.

The Street believed that it is a foregone conclusion that a moratorium will be declared, and this is causing the details to decide what effect it should have on the security markets. It is generally believed that a moratorium on war debts will be announced at first be reflected in lower prices for stocks, but would subsequently be construed as favorable to such action, and would lead to a steady upward movement.

Oil shares were somewhat higher today, but the market was not as active as in the preceding session. The prices of crude oil and gasoline by the Standard Oil of California. These higher prices, however, apply to only a few grades, and are not produced in conformity with the price schedule.

The change for the better also stimulated some buying in oil stocks. Most of the buying was in Standard Oil of California which at one time showed an advance of more than 3 points, but closed with a net gain of 2.

Simultaneous with the marking up of the prices of gasoline and oil, the Street heard that one of the largest New York banking houses had assumed an optimistic attitude on the good oil stocks.

Merger negotiations continued to progress in a number of directions in the oil group. The latest consolidation negotiations are reported to be going on between the Ohio Oil and the Standard Oil of Indiana. The lower values for oil lands prevailing by reason of the abnormally low prices for oil is causing a number of the big companies to go out and purchase additional oil lands.

The Sinclair Consolidated is reported to be very active in that direction. It is also stated that these purchases of oil lands from relatively small oil interests are expected in the long run to contribute substantially to the stabilization of the oil situation.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT.—Reports of improvement in business are being received. Further betterment is being predicted so that within 30 days the expansion in industry is expected to become noticeable. Improvement in the tire manufacturing business which was reported for May is continuing in June. The shoe business is showing improvement, production for May having reached a high level, according to the New York Hide Exchange.

The economic outlook brightened by the big corporations are beginning to offset reduced gross business, and the Street hears of quite a number of corporations which are expected to show an increase over 1930. Prominent among these are the Coca-Cola, Hershey Chocolate, Auburn Auto, Standard Brands, Kellogg, and Kroger Grocery.

Opinion in important places that the decline is over continued to grow. Rhodes & Co. today issued a letter to its clients which stated that "the bear market is over. This firm expects the opinion that American and United States stock common would lead the market upward."

THE GUMPS—BAD NEWS

GRAND HOTEL

By VICKI BAUM

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

He sat down. The general director suddenly heard himself talking and now he talked well. A strange and until now quite unknown intoxication took possession of him, and everything he now said had vigor and power and energy. Flamm the First bent her old-maidish and down-covered face over her block and took it all down in shorthand—for now that a final settlement seemed to be approaching, every word was of importance.

Pressing's new and inspired condition was maintained till the end of the conference, which went on for three hours and twenty minutes longer. It was only when he grasped his fountain pen to append his signature by the side of Gerstenkorn's to the draft agreement that he observed that his hands were once more moist and singularly unclean.

The telephone buzzed punctually at 9 in Dr. Otterschlag's small and inexpensive room. "What's up?" he asked himself and the telephone. "What's up now?" Then for a minute or two he lay still and thought hard, with the disfigured side of his face pressed into the pillow. Wait a bit, he thought—I left a call—it's that Kringlein, poor fellow. We have to show him a bit of life. He's waiting for us. He's sitting waiting for us in the breakfast room.

"Shall we get up and dress?" he asked himself. "Yes, so we will," he replied after an effort, for he had a good sleeping draught of morphine in his veins. Nevertheless, there was a certain alacrity about him as he hurried over his dressing. Somebody was waiting for him. Somebody was grateful to him. The chambermaid in the hallway was astonished to hear Dr. Otterschlag humming a song.

Meanwhile, Kringlein was already seated in the breakfast room still exhausted, excited, and exultant after his exacting victory over General Director Pressing in the barber shop. Also, 10 minutes before, he had made the acquaintance of the engaging and delightful Baron von Gaigern. Gaigern had been busy. After emerging minus the pearls from his night with Grusinskaya, he had shot straight into an explanatory scene with his chauffeur accomplice, conducted in whispers, but none the less vehement.

After that, he had run into the provincial gentleman of No. 70, from whom in one way or another he hoped to raise the few thousand marks of which he now stood in immediate need. Evidently he was filled with a radiant blissful and devouring eagerness and impatience. Though it was only an hour since he had parted with Grusinskaya, he felt already an uncontrollable desire to see her. Through his whole being he felt the longing to be with her again with all its eagerness.

Gaigern started upon his enterprise with Kringlein with enormous gusto. He went off like a rocket and in a quarter of an hour had gone an immense way towards winning his confidence. Kringlein was captivated at once. He exposed his timid employer's soul with all its eagerness for life and all its acceptance of death, and what he did not say or could not express Gaigern guessed for himself.

"You must understand, Baron," said Kringlein, "that I have come into a little money after living always in very restricted circumstances—oh yes, in very restricted circumstances. A man like you can have no idea of what that means. To be afraid of the coal bill you know, to be unable to go to the dentist, until, after putting it off year after year, you find yourself minus most of your teeth—you don't know how. But I won't talk about it. The day before yesterday I ate caviare for the first time. You may well laugh, you eat caviare and so on every day, of course. When our general director Pressing entertains people he has caviare sent by the pound from Dresden. Well, caviare, champagne, and all the rest of it are not life, you may say. But what is life, Herr Baron? You see, Baron, I am no longer young, and besides I am not in good health, and then you suddenly feel afraid—so afraid—of missing life altogether. I don't want to miss life, if you understand?"

"Funny. You talk of life as though it were a train you have to catch. How long have you been after it, three days? And not got a glimpse of it yet in spite of caviare and champagne? What did you do yesterday for example? Kaiser Friedrich Museum, Potsdam, and at night the theater. Well, and what pleased you most? Which picture? You don't know? Of course not. And the theater? Grusinskaya? Yes, Grusinskaya," said Gaigern, and at the name his heart gave a bound like a silly boy. "What do you say? It made you sad; it was so poetical. But all that has nothing to do with life, Herr Direktor," the said "Herr Direktor" from pure goodness of heart, because he was shocked by the plain plebeian name of Kringlein, and Kringlein blushed with pleasure.

"Life is—look here, Herr Direktor, with a tie like yours you'll never catch up with life, and you'll never feel happy in a suit like that, if you'll put yourself in my hands I promise you that we'll soon put some go into the business, and the first thing is to go to a tailor. Have you any money on you? A check book? Well, put some ready money in your pocket. Meanwhile I'll get my car out of the garage. I've given my chauffeur a few days off—so I drive myself."

"I thought—I didn't want to lay out money on clothes," Kringlein murmured, and he saw figures capering giddily in his account book. "I'll gladly spend money on other things but not on clothes."

"Why not for clothes? Clothes are half the battle."

"Because it isn't worth while now," Kringlein said in a low voice, and the soft, silly tears snarled in the corners of his eyes. He couldn't, couldn't, think of his approaching end without emotion. Gaigern looked vexed. "It really is not worth while. I mean—I have not many more opportunities left for wearing new clothes. I thought—the old ones would be good enough to last me out," Kringlein whispered guiltily.

Good Lord, has every one got a dose of veronal ready to his hand? thought Gaigern. "Don't reckon things up, Herr Kringlein. One's apt to reckon all wrong. You should not go on wearing old clothes. You should meet each moment as the moment requires. Come along now, and put a few thousand marks in your pocket and then we'll see whether there isn't some fun in life."

Kringlein got up obediently. A few thousand marks, he thought with his mind in a few good days. One day at a few thousand marks. As he followed Gaigern he was still putting up a resistance, but he was afraid of the threatened expenditure, of the smart tailor; he was afraid of the gray-blue motor car as he got into the front seat; he was afraid of his blind, although he was afraid of missing it, too. He clenched his dilapidated teeth together, pulled on his cotton gloves and began his good day.

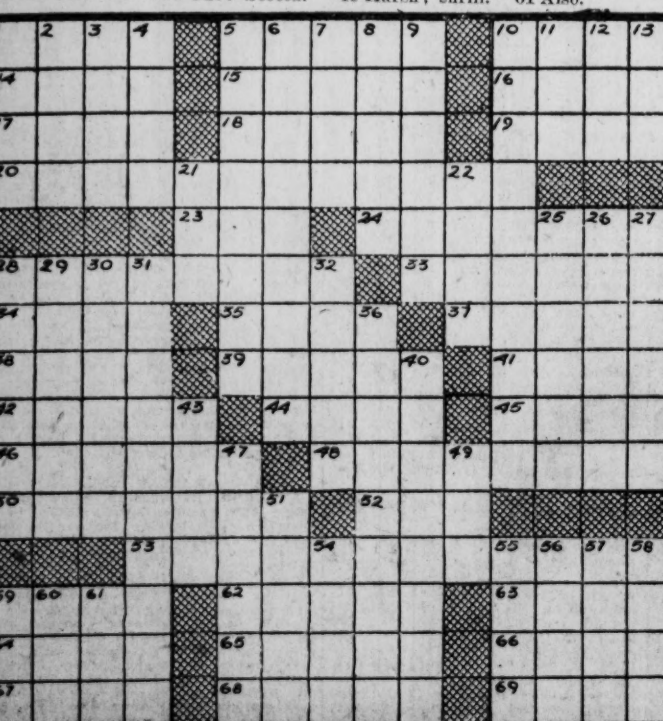

As Dr. Otterschlag at 10 minutes to 10 coasted round the walls of the lounge searching for Kringlein, he was handed a letter by the hall porter. "My Dear Doctor," it ran. "I regret that I am unexpectedly prevented from keeping my engagement with you today. With respectful greetings, yours truly, 'Otto Kringlein.'"

Dr. Otterschlag held the letter out in front of him. The lounge was a dreary waste of endless vacant hours. He pattered along past the newspaper stand, past the flower stand, past the elevator, and past the pillars to his customary seat. Frightful, he thought. Ghastly. Hideous! His leaden cigarette-stained fingers hung down, and he stared with his blind eye at the charwoman who was sweeping out the lounge.

Engage Passage On Steamer Veendam

SILENCE ORDERED ON NAVAL MATTERS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—To prevent leakage of information, navy officials have been directed to maintain silence concerning matters discussed at departmental conferences.

A report that such an order had been issued, week ago was verified today by Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. He denied any particular occurrence had caused its issuance and said it was done "as a matter of good business."

Pratt said that the order was issued in the middle of the town. Well, my dear, we will have that Prairie-dog dinner just as we planned. Here are two pieces and I caught them so quickly they didn't even know what was happening. There is nothing like a clever trick to get what you want when you can't get it any other way. Now we'll get away from here and out of sight. Out of sight is out of mind, you know, and our visit will soon be forgotten. Then some time we can work the same trick again."

The next story: "A Deserted Home."

The total of honor-tricks shown by the opponents bids added a fair measure of the honor strength balance held by partner—an important consideration, especially when partner consistently passes.

The "balance of strength" principle is of immediate practical application at all stages of the bidding. For instance: Assuming the First Hand opens with one no trump, showing thereby at least 2-12 honor-tricks:

HOW CRAFT WON A DINNER

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The crafty almost always tries by clever trick to win the prize. —Old Mother Nature.

It was in just such a way that Mr. and Mrs. Speedfoot the Coyotes won their dinner in Prairie-dog Town. Speedfoot had known just what would happen the instant that Mrs. Speedfoot showed herself, and it had happened. Yip Yip, the nearest Prairie-dog, had given the alarm and instantly there had been a mad scramble for safety. In a jiffy the town had appeared deserted. Mrs. Speedfoot had kept right on and Speedfoot had waited until the last Prairie-dog had disappeared. Then he had raced after her.

Straight into the very middle of the town they had raced. There Speedfoot had flattened himself behind one of the houses, one that he had seen some half-grown young Prairie-dogs enter. He could hear excited barks coming from houses all around. He knew that in each just a little way from the entrance a Prairie-dog was sitting on a landing prepared for just as soon as it seemed safe to do so.

More and more came out, young and old, and every one of them sat up to watch Mrs. Speedfoot and express an unkind opinion of her. They had seen but one Coyote in the first place and naturally thought that that was the only one. So no one thought to look for another. With another, in plain sight they were too excited to do any real thinking. Mrs. Speedfoot waited until she saw four half-grown youngsters come from the house behind which Speedfoot was hiding. She grinned and then turned as if to trot away. It seemed as if every Prairie-dog in that town was out watching her and barking at her.

Once more she looked back. She saw Speedfoot spring from behind that house. In an instant the whole town was once more a scene of confusion, with shrill whistles of alarm in all directions. Most of those Prairie-dogs didn't know what it was all about, but they did know that somehow there was great danger, and without stopping to see just where it was they scrambled for the nearest doorways. Only those who were near Speedfoot knew what the trouble was, and they didn't wait to see what was happening.

Mrs. Speedfoot trotted back into town. Straight to where Speedfoot was waiting with a broad grin she went. Then she, too, grinned. "It worked, didn't it?" said she.

"Of course it worked," replied Speedfoot, and there was just a hint of pride in his voice. I knew it would. The silly things were all looking at you. It didn't enter their heads that there would be any danger in the middle of the town. Well, my dear, we will have that Prairie-dog dinner just as we planned. Here are two pieces and I caught them so quickly they didn't even know what was happening. There is nothing like a clever trick to get what you want when you can't get it any other way. ## Yates Beats Spicer But Bows to Toomer in Semi-Finals; Manager Johnny Dobbs Will Return to Cracker Club Today

YATES DEFEATS SPICER, BOWS TO JACK TOOMER

Harris, Memphis, Plays Floridan Today for Dixie Title.

By Dillon Graham, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 19.—(AP)—Chastain Harris, Memphis, a competitor for years but never a victor, and Jack Toomer, 21-year-old Florida champion from Jacksonville, today earned the right to battle over the 36-hole title here tomorrow for the 1931 southern amateur golf championship.

This is Toomer's first southern tournament and the first time that Harris has ever advanced this far in the Dixie title event.

Harris captured his semi-final match over the Riverview course here this afternoon, 3 and 2, from Frank Sitz, a newcomer in this championship from Gadsden, Ala., while Toomer, who already this year has won the southeastern and the Florida amateur titles, eliminated young Charles Yates, of Atlanta.

Yates is sensation. This morning created the biggest upset of the tourney by downing the two-time champion from Memphis, Emmett Spicer, 1 up, with a stymie on the last green.

In the quarter finals this morning Toomer defeated Darden Hampton, Chattanooga, 4 and 3; Harris eliminated Polly Boyd, the Tennessee champion from Chattanooga, 3 and 2, and Sitz won the match for Oaks, also of Chattanooga, 5 and 4.

Both of the semi-finals were real thrillers. Toomer and Yates fought for the full 18 holes before the decision finally was settled. Toomer won the third and the seventh, while Yates took the fifth, sixth and eighth to round the turn 1 up. Both played fair golf on the out nines for cards of 38 for Yates and 39 for Toomer.

Yates was 2 up on the tenth but Toomer won the eleventh. The next 4 holes were halved and then Toomer fired a birdie 4 on the 16th to square things and a par on the 17th to go 1 up.

On the 18th Toomer's tee shot was off to the left of the short green but he made a nice recovery and sank a 16-foot putt for a halve in three and the victory.

In the other match, after the first three holes had been halved, Harris won 3 of the next 5 holes to go 3 up and passed the halfway mark with this lead. Harris was out in 29, while Sitz scored in 33.

YATES IS COOL. Coming back Harris won the 10th and 11th to go 5 up. The 12th was halved and Sitz won the 13th and 14th to cut his disadvantage down to 3 holes. The best 19-year-old Alabama school boy could do on the next 2 holes was to match Harris' strokes and the contest ended on the 16th.

The Yates-Spicer match was close all the way this morning. The 17-year-old Atlanta, evidencing no uneasiness at meeting the 1929 and 1930 champion, fought Spicer to a standstill on the first 9. He was 1 up through the 10th. On the 11th Spicer a stymie which the champion failed in his attempt to putt.

Harris had the Tennessee champion, Boyd, 1 down at the turn, with both going out in par 36. Harris was even par through the end of his match on the 16th.

HORNER STRICKEN WITH APPENDICITIS. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 19. (AP)—Scudbury Horner, 17-year-old Nashville golf prodigy who won the qualifying medal in the Southern Amateur Golf Association tournament, was stricken with acute appendicitis while playing the 12th hole of a second flight quarter-final match in competition today.

He finished four more holes to lose to Bob Chambers, Atlanta, his opponent, 3 and 2, and immediately afterward was rushed to Nashville by plane. He was taken then to St. Thomas hospital there for an operation.

Pat Lebourgeois, New Orleans, will meet Alvin Raham Jr. for fifth flight honors. Lebourgeois defeated Jene Dahlbender, Atlanta, 2 and 1, in a semi-final match today, and early won a quarter-final 2-and-1 victory over J. W. McDowell, Chattanooga.

MOBILE, Ala., June 19.—(AP)—Out-fighter Si Rosen had, with Atlanta and Galveston this year was tonight by the Mobile Marines, according to Manager Milton Stock and will report at Mobile Sunday.

Pitcher Alex McCool, right-hander of the Marines, is ill with fever in a sanitarium at Chattanooga and may be out for two weeks.

N. B. A. Approves Bout for Crown

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—The National Boxing Association will recognize the winner of the Stribling-Schmelzing fight at Cleveland July 3 as world's heavyweight champion.

This was the ruling today of General John V. Cline, president of the N. B. A., after conducting a poll on the question of giving recognition to the victor as champion.

General Cline will attend the fight to present the winner with the National Boxing Association's championship belt.

At the time it happened a baseball writer suggested that he was glad John D. Martin, president of the Southern league, was in the grandstand and saw the altercation between Manager Johnny Dobbs and Umpire Ed Goes. The reporter felt that, having seen the events leading up to the tragedy, President Martin would temper his decision with mercy.

President Martin's action yesterday in restoring Johnny to duty in the dugout and on the coaching lines was a fine move. It was a tribute to the years of distinguished service in the Southern league that mark Dobbs' history. It was a concession to the unusual circumstances surrounding the altercation.

Above all, it was the manifestation of a sense of justice that John D. Martin wears so graciously. When Manager Dobbs stood awaiting a suspension that might have kept him out of baseball for the rest of the season—the penalty for striking an umpire is left to the discretion of the league president and may be from 90 days to one year—sports writers and baseball men from all over the league sent telegrams to the president's desk urging clemency.

Therefore, it is certain that the return of Johnny Dobbs to action will be greeted with cheers all over the league. He will take his club out on the road Sunday for a long swing in high hopes of catching the Barons and Lookouts. His return may be just the spark the club needs.

YATES DID WELL. Those who sang the blues over the decadence of Atlanta golf after qualifying scores in the southern amateur came in no doubt were pleasantly surprised to see young Charlie Yates carry Jack Toomer, Florida state champion, down to the eighteenth green in the semi-final match.

Charlie Yates came close. He had the Floridan one down on the fifteenth. In the morning he had defeated Emmett Spicer, 1930 champion, 1 up, in a rousing upset. His experience yesterday should stand him in fine stead next year.

When Bobby Jones came home from England in 1926, bringing back his first British open championship, Charlie Yates was in the party that welcomed Bobby in New York. Charlie was in the bow of the S. S. Macom going out to take Bobby off the liner at quarantine.

"I just hope some day I can play half as good as Bobby," the youngster mused as he gazed into the mists of the bay. Charlie has the big urge. And where ambition is blazing anything may happen.

THE APPEAL OF SPORTS. In one of the Alabama street windows of Rich's is an exhibit of 26 prominent sports figures done in statuettes. The models are dressed in appropriate costumes.

Grantland Rice, sports writer (see The Constitution every day), Jack Dempsey, Gertrude Ederle, Suzanne Lenglen, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Walter Hagen, Gene Tunney, Red Grange, Charles Lindbergh, Gar Wood, Charles Paddock are just a few of the representations.

The window is attracting crowds attesting the universal appeal of sports personalities. The sports pages, wise advertisers long since have learned, is the one section of the newspaper that is read by every member of the family.

HOW TO PRONOUNCE IT. A Stribling booster from Stockbridge, Ga., wants to know how to pronounce the last name of Max Schmeling.

The best recipe is to articulate the "Sch" as in trying to quiet a child at a musical; then bring in the "me" as in "why" and let the "ling" tag on naturally.

However, many simply pronounce it "Smelling" and make themselves understood. No matter how you accent it, he is the champion of the world until the night of July 3.

STRIBLING GOES UP IN BLIMP, CAREY GOES UP IN AIR

Garden Officials Burn Up When W. L. Takes Ride With "Pa."

By Ralph McGill, Staff Correspondent.

STIRLING'S TRAINING CAMP, GEAUGA LAKE, Ohio, June 19.—W. L. Stribling had the Madison Square Garden officials right up in the air with him this afternoon when he suddenly decided to ride from Akron to Geauga Lake in a blimp, the ride that rained in a few days ago.

The Madison Square Garden had Stribling under contract not to ride in airplanes. The contract did not mention a blimp. And so today when the challenger for the world's heavyweight fighting title visited the Shrine Club in Akron for lunch, he received an invitation from the Goodyear people to ride back in a blimp.

STIRLING TAKE OFF. "Pa" and W. L. and Ed Boone, the latter being W. L.'s close friend from Macon, climbed into the cabin of the Blimp Puritan, and sailed off.

They sailed over Cleveland. They sailed over the camp and yelled down insults to any newspaperman who might be in camp. They then visited the race track and the jockey club, and so low that the ground ropes dragged the ground, and then landed on a field near the camp at Geauga, some small boys rushing up to grab the ropes.

All this put the burn on Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden. It was a very, very terrible day indeed. Stribling was smoking. A newspaperman from Akron telephoned him that Stribling was in the air. Bill Carey rushed up to the roof of the Hollenden hotel and danced around, shaking his fists at the blimp and yelling for Stribling to come down.

HIS TELEGRAM. When the blimp disappeared toward Geauga Lake, Bill Carey danced around in the sun until he heard that the blimp was crashed. He then sat down and wrote out the following wire:

"Am amazed to hear you rode blimp this afternoon. Do you realize that you are jeopardizing your chances for fame and fortune to say nothing of the expense Madison Square Garden of Ohio has already made to make this fight a success. If you insist on taking chances which may ruin this world's championship match we will place you under guard to protect our interests. See that it does not happen again."

"WILLIAM F. CAREY, President Madison Square Garden."

W. L. quit the blimp and then revealed that he had handled the controls for a while. He didn't care much for blimps.

"They are slow. Next to walking I'd ride in a blimp. Bill Carey didn't worry. If I'm going to get killed I'll get killed going somewhere for pictures, and then I'll be in one of those rocking chairs."

PA LIKES BLIMP. "Pa" Stribling thought the blimp was great. He said, "I'm not going to ride for the rest of the afternoon. I'll play one winner and then found that he had a date with a photographer. He left the camp for pictures, and then he was in his first swim. There will be few of those. He thinks they build the wrong kind of muscles."

He then dashed off for nine holes of golf. He has to have action. The next workout is scheduled for Saturday night with another one on Sunday night.

Echoes of Thursday night were heard throughout the city today. Stribling's great ride. "Pa" would have whipped any man in the world. New sparring partners are due Saturday or Sunday.

Cleveland Prepares For Heavyweight Battle.

CLEVELAND, June 19.—(AP)—Two weeks from tonight in this city that never before has seen two heavyweights in a fight, Max Schmeling, the German, and W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon, Ga., will battle 15 rounds for the heavyweight championship of the world.

So far preparations for the struggle have been almost a community secret, but between now and the night of July 3 the hallow drums will roll, the fighters will work themselves into the customary state of "physical perfection" and the faithful in more or less quantity, will present themselves with money in their fists at the gates of the Cleveland municipal stadium on the shores of Lake Erie.

While Schmeling, recognized as champion everywhere but in New York state, where he won the title from Jack Sharkey on a foul last year, trains at Connetquot Lake in Pennsylvania, 61 miles away, and Stribling toils in a tiny resort on Geauga Lake, near the city, the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio is striving mightily to make the Midwest "fight conscious."

So far, the box office reports that about $100,000 is in the cash register.

Aunt Cora Buys 'Dust Pan Blues'

STIRLING'S TRAINING CAMP, GEAUGA LAKE, Ohio, June 19.—Aunt Cora and Annie May, the two colored cooks from Georgia who are here with the Striblings to prepare the food, went to Cleveland today with Miss Edith Nolan, Pa.'s secretary, and "Ma" Stribling.

Aunt Cora purchased two records for the Striblings. They were "The Slow-foot Blues" and "The Dust Pan Blues."

"I don't know the name of the songs but they sho's pretty," said Aunt Cora.

CRACKERS WIN THIRD IN ROW FROM MEMPHIS

Errors Aid Atlanta in 9-5 Victory; Morrison Hurts.

By Max Hall.

Atlanta's Crackers, aided considerably by opponents' errors, stretched seven hits into nine runs Friday night at Spiller field to beat Harry Kelly and the Memphis Chickasaws, 9 to 5.

Memphis got nine safe blows, but Jughandle Johnny Morrison, who showed something like his real form for the first time in weeks, kept them fairly well scattered. Errors on both sides took the punch out of the ball game.

Harry Kelly had several tough breaks in the beginning of the contest. The Crackers scored two runs in the first inning without making a hit, and got another in the third on a lone single. Grant Gillis, shortstop, made two costly errors in those frames, and Roy Williams, second baseman, made a wild throw that let two runs score.

After the Crackers had really hammered the ball and made four runs in the third, their big inning, Kelly allowed only four hits for the rest of the game. But the damage was done. Memphis could not get to Jughandle Johnny, who, with the jughandle curve ball, enough to catch that lead.

LADIES TURN OUT. It was ladies' night, and how those ladies did pour into the stands. The crowd, in contrast to Thursday night's 1,500 or so, numbered 10,148. Of these, 5,258 were members of the other sex. The grandstand was full.

The Crackers won their third straight game against the Chickasaws. They have won three out of four in the five-game series, with the last game scheduled for this afternoon at 7:30 o'clock. Sunny Hearns probably will hurl for Atlanta, and the whole club will celebrate the return of Manager Johnny Dobbs, whose suspension has been terminated by the higher-ups.

It was a listless ball game that the Crackers won Friday night in the ultra-dark of the big lamps. Nothing of brilliance was to be seen except the lights themselves, barring perhaps three home runs, two of which were of doubtful quality.

CHAPMAN ON HAND. John Chapman, Atlanta's newly acquired third baseman, was on hand but did not play. He drove down from Nashville during the day and was allowed to rest up. He will play third base against Memphis this afternoon.

Amos Martin held down the position. The Cracker pair of runs in the first came when Taft walked, Carlyle lived on Gillis' error and both men scored when Williams tossed away Shirley's grounder. In the second a run was scored when Ryan went around to second on Gillis' wild throw to first, was sacrificed to by Martin and batted in by Red Barnes.

A walk, a sacrifice and Carlyle's single started the scoring in that fourth stanza. Shirley was hit by a pitched ball and Ryan drove out a home run to center field to clean the bag. It was a hard hand that Johnny, racing to first, failed to reach.

MARTIN'S HOMER. Atlanta scored another in the fifth and another in the eighth when Amos Martin hit his home run. It was a long ball, a left-center that Jones relayed in to Gillis, who threw to Berger at the plate. Martin slid into Berger and was called safe, though Berger did not drop the ball.

The Chickasaws protested the play so furiously that Brazil, first baseman, was ejected from the game by Umpire Shannon.

Memphis got its first score when Brazil, the same, whaled a home run clean over the little green fence in right field in the fourth inning. Chief Taylor batted in two runs in the sixth and two more came across in the ninth on Amos Martin's wild throw.

Berger, Chick catcher, who has been out with an injured finger, got back in the game Friday night. Harry Kelly walked three men, hit one and uncocked a wild pitch to help the Crackers close a bit.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 18

Tarzan of the Apes, dangling helplessly and facing death in the shape of the advancing saber-tooth tiger, heard the jungle silence disturbed by the sudden sound. The great cat heard it also, for it stopped in its tracks and passed up into the foliage. And then Tarzan heard a rustling in the branches directly overhead. Looking up, he saw what appeared to be a gorilla glaring down upon him. Two more savage faces showed through the foliage and then in other trees he thought he saw similar shaggy forms and fierce faces.

The figures Tarzan saw were like gorillas and yet unlike any such creature he had known upon the outer earth. He caught glimpses of great clubs wielded by hairy hands. He saw the huge saber-tooth tiger had hesitated in its advances and was snarling and growling angrily as it watched the savage beings glaring down at its intended prey. But only for a moment did the cat pause. Still snarling as though in angry defiance, it moved forward again. Then several things occurred at the same time.

As the boat was within a foot of the ape-man, one of the creatures in the tree above reached down and, seizing the rope that held Tarzan dangling in mid-air, drew him swiftly upward. The saber-tooth leaped to capture his prey and a dozen heavy cudgels hurtled through the air from the surrounding trees, striking the great cat heavily upon its head and body. These deflected the cruel talons of the animal just in the nick of time. An instant later Tarzan was drawn well up among the tree branches, where he was immediately seized by three hairy brutes.

As Tarzan saw the menacing attitudes of his ugly captors he almost wished he had been left to the tender mercies of the saber-tooth. He felt he was no safer. For, one on either side of him, the gorilla-like creatures seized him by an arm. A third grasped him by the throat with one hand while he held his cudgel poised above his head with the other. And then from the lips of the creature facing him came a sound. It startled the ape-man's ears, as had the first unexpected roar of the saber-tooth, but with far different effect.
